Marching bands and other units for the National Independence Day Parade in Washington, D.C. are selected based upon video tapes, recommendations, director interviews, past accomplishments, uniforms and past adjudication results in similar parades or festivals. Representation from all regions and states of the United States is a major factor in the selection process. While several outstanding units may originate within a small geographical area, conceivably only one may be selected in favor of representation from the broadest spectrum of geography and diversity possible. If, in the view of the National Selection Committee, most other considerations are equal, greatest priority will be given to Marching bands and other units in order of receipt of their application.
